RELIEF

With around 425 million people living with the condition worldwide, diabetes is among the fast growing health issues.

The International Diabetes Federation (IDF) assesses the global spread of diabetes as a “global epidemic”.

In Germany, there are eight million people living with Type 2 diabetes. Diabetic foot syndrome is among the most common complications, due to circulation issues and nerve damage.

The diabetic foot – minimising the risk

Consistent foot protection using specialist shoes can minimise the risk of ulcers, infections and amputation – after all, one in every two diabetic foot ulcers is caused by poorly-fitting footwear. LucRo specialist shoes can help combat pressure sores and inflammatory complications and recurring inflammation (recurrences).

LucRo specialist diabetes shoes are used for diabetic polyneuropathy after an ulcer has healed as well as to avoid ulcers.

These features makes LucRo specialist shoes a recognised therapeutic tool:

- Pressure-reducing, soft cushioning around the entire Upper
- Wide opening
- No toe cap to give additional protection to the delicate forefoot
- Shock-absorbing insoles and outsoles for even pressure distribution beneath the foot
- Optimised pressure distribution thanks to specialist sole technology

Studies confirm efficacy

LucRo classic study results

A clinical study from the Heinrich Heine University of Düsseldorf<sup>6</sup> confirms that suitable “diabetic footwear” makes a decisive contribution to preventing foot ulcers and can prevent recurring inflammation (recurrences). The rate of ulcer recurrences fell by more than 80% in high-risk diabetes patients with polyneuropathy and/or a peripheral arterial occlusive disease in the first year. The study monitored 92 high-risk diabetic patients with healed foot ulcers for recurrence of foot ulcers over a period of 42 months. Some of the patients wore normal footwear, the others wore the LucRo classic specialist diabetes shoe.

Arguments for advice, adaptation and prescription

Why do I need a specialist shoe?

In its DDG practice recommendation for diabetic foot syndrome, the Deutsches Diabetes Gesellschaft defines relieving pressure on the feet by wearing diabetes-adapted insoles in suitable footwear as the most important preventative measure.<sup>7</sup>

Why should I choose LucRo?
